Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 11 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Very cold into Friday with snow showers. Western parts brightest.

This Evening and Tonight:
Very cold overnight, with a widespread severe frost developing under clear spells. Becoming breezier later in the night, with some snow showers reaching coastal districts into daybreak to give some icy patches here. Minimum temperature -9 deg C (16 deg F).

Friday:
Cold throughout, with a continuing raw-feeling breeze and some snow flurries, these most numerous in northern and eastern areas. Drier and brighter further west, with the best of sunny spells. Maximum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Mainly fine Saturday, but cold and increasingly windy. Gusty with coastal gales Sunday, with some snow and freezing rain spreading east later. Unsettled but gradually less cold from Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.